HIDDEN Agendas at Work By Colin Tipping

This is a cautionary tale that every executive, business manager and business owner should heed as a matter of survival. It is a dramatic illustration of how our unconscious hidden agendas can literally bring a company to its knees — without anyone involved understanding how or why it happened.

It not only reveals the underlying dynamics responsible for creating such unconscious and therefore hidden agendas, but suggests how they can be anticipated and neutralized before they do irreparable damage to the organization. This is what makes the information given in this compelling and touching story so extremely valuable. The methodology provided

The narrative tracks five key people in a small manufacturing company called The Gyroscopic Instrument Company (GiCo), Inc.

Bob Pearson, CEO

Gwen Harper, Personal Secretary to the CEO

Dennis Barker, VP of Sales and Marketing

Monty Fisk, Production Manager

Meg Smith, Production Supervisor

It shows how each of their personal histories determines what they bring to the table in the way of unconscious material and shows how this phenomenon seriously affects the company, preventing it from growing and even threatening its very existence.

The GiCo Story will alert you to the danger that lurks in every organization and how it can be managed using a method developed by Colin Tipping that does not include psychotherapy or any kind of testing — the Quantum Energy Management System. Rather, the employee sees it as an employee benefit. The results include reduction in conflict, sabotage, cynicism and absenteeism while ensuring improved productivity, higher morale, less turnover of key personnel and higher profits.

Individuals within an organization may also use the Quantum Energy Management System for themselves, privately, as a way to protect themselves from negativity within the workplace environment and to become personally more engaged and successful in their own field.
